The Macmillan Information and Support Service in Nottingham

Who are we?
Macmillan Cancer Support and Nottingham University Hospitals NHS Trust have worked together to develop the Macmillan Information and Support Service, which has centres based at Nottingham City Hospital and Queen's Medical Centre. The service is staffed by a Macmillan Cancer Information Specialist, a Macmillan Cancer Information Officer and a team of trained volunteers who can provide information and support at any stage of your cancer journey. We also support families and friends of anyone affected by cancer or those who may have lost a loved one.

What can we offer?
We offer a free confidential service to anyone living with cancer, their relatives, friends and carers. We can help with:

- information and support on all aspects of living with cancer such as cancer treatment and its side-effects
- emotional and practical support
- access to advice about benefits and finances
- Macmillan grants
- information about travel and travel insurance
- signposting to support groups and local services
- answering any questions you may have

If you would like to receive our monthly newsletter, please email cancerinfo@nuh.nhs.uk and ask to be added to our mailing list.

To find out what is happening at our centres and for service updates, you can follow us on Facebook or Twitter

The Macmillan Information and Support service is a drop-in service, there is no need to book. You can see our opening times on the next page. We do offer visitors to the centre a private room for confidentiality if required.
